

Notice for travel between the European Union and the United States of America

Under US Law and in accordance with an International Agreement between the European Union and the United States, the US Department of Homeland Security (DHS) will receive certain travel and reservation data (PNR) about passengers flying between the European Union and the United States.

The "Passenger Name Record" (PNR) includes a variety of information provided during the booking process or held by airlines or travel agents, such as the passenger's name, contact details, details of the travel itinerary (such as date of travel, origin and destination, seat number, and number of bags) and details of the reservation (such as travel agency and payment information) or other information (such as affiliation with a frequent flier program).

The DHS has undertaken that it uses this information primarily for the purposes of preventing and combating terrorism and other transnational serious crimes. These and other data may also be used for checking against lists of passengers raising aviation security concerns. The PNR information will be retained for at least three years and six months and may be shared with other authorities.

Further information about these arrangements, including measures of safeguard your personal data can be obtained from your airlines.
